

EARLE TALKS TO 4,000 AT RALLY OF DEMOCRATS

Candidates and Party Leaders Also Discuss Election Issues.

OX ROAST IS ALSO PART OF PROGRAM

Enthusiastic endorsement of President Roosevelt and his policies was given Saturday afternoon by a corps of speakers headed by Governor George H. Earle at the democratic rally and ox roast at the South mountain fair grounds. A crowd estimated at about 4,000 persons listened for two hours and a half to their governor, party candidates and other guest speakers.

Paying tribute to "the amazing knowledge of President Roosevelt" Governor Earle said: "If all the people in this country knew the President as intimately as I do there wouldn't be 10,000 republican votes in the whole nation. He has the biggest heart and the biggest brain of any man in this country."

The governor was the second speaker on the afternoon's program. With District Attorney John P. Butt, democratic county chairman, presiding, Congressman Harry L. Haines was presented first to the crowd. The governor and these other speakers followed: Mrs. Emma Guffey Miller, Pittsburgh, sister of Senator Joseph Guffey; State Senator John S. Rice; F. Clair Ross, for state treasurer; State Senator Warren S. Roberts; for auditor general and Charles H. Richter, for representative in the general assembly.

Haines lauds Earle

Congressman Haines opened his address with a tribute to Governor Earle, whom he labeled as "one of the greatest men in public life today, a champion of the common people, who, I believe, is destined for the presidency."

Turning then to national affairs, the speaker challenged his listeners to point to one act of the Roosevelt administration that was intended to injure anyone. "We are determined to carry on in this country for the benefit of every man, woman and child. We have made tremendous strides. I have yet to find a farmer who does not say that his lot is better today than when Hoover was president."

Haines declared that he wants to back President Roosevelt "100 per cent" in everything he asks and pointed to the need for a "sympathetic congress." He labeled as "bunk" the warnings of the trend toward fascism and communism, and affirmed that the danger from these forces grow less as the country becomes more prosperous. "Communism thrives on destitution and not among a happy contented people," he asserted.

Urges Comparison

Early in his address Governor Earle asked the people to list as the determining question in deciding on how they will vote this fall that of whether or not they are better off now than in 1932. He declared that people of this state are going to stay democratic politically because they cannot be fooled any longer. He listed the public schools of this state, the greatest in the world, he said, and the appearance of outstanding liberal newspapers as the causes for the change.

Governor Earle stated that he believes that with normal weather conditions and with the use of modern farm equipment we would have economic chaos in this nation without crop control. Surplus crops in this nation will bring economic blockades by other countries and the price of agricultural products here will be beaten down to a point as low as that reached during the depression years.

"The farmer and the laborer are economic brothers," the governor declared. He listed as the greatest problem before the nation that of unemployment resulting from continuous improvements on labor saving devices. "Industry has recovered tremendously but there has not been a corresponding decrease in unemployment," he pointed out. "The only man who saw the solution to the machine problem was Franklin D. Roosevelt and he proposed the only solution there is—higher wages and shorter hours—and then the supreme court threw it out."

Senator Rice Speaks

Hitting the progress-blocking republican senate at Harrisburg, he pointed to Senators McClure, Clark, Salus and Coyne as typical of the republican leadership and commended Senator John S. Rice as one of the "most loyal and intelligent senators who ever held office in this state. He has done as much for me as Congressmen have done for me as Congressmen."

FOUR CIVIL SUITS ON DOCKET FOR NOVEMBER COURT

Hartman Action Asks $119 Damages; N. J. Woman Seeks $5,000.

NO DATE SET FOR HEARINGS

An unusually brief session of court of common pleas loomed today for the November session with the announcement by Prothonotary C. Arthur Brame that only four civil suits are listed for trial. With no session of common pleas court in August, the civil calendar is usually well filled for November court. Saturday was the final day for listing civil suits for trial.

The first suit on the list is the damage action being brought by W. N. Hartman, Menallen township, Adams county director of the poor, against C. Edward Sheeler, Biglerville, for damage to the former's car as the result of an automobile accident on the Biglerville road, three miles north of here on the morning of January 6, 1936. At the time of the crash Mr. Hartman was on his way to take his oath of office as a member of the county poor board.

Claims Repair Bill for Car

Hartman asks $119.21 with interest since the day of the crash. He claims that sum as the repair bill for his car. No one was hurt in the accident. Edgar K. Markley, Esq., represents Mr. Hartman. Sheeler has retained Keith and Bigham, Esqs., as his counsel.

In the second damage action listed, Oscar C. Rice, Jr., Biglerville, is being sued for $5,000 by James and Alice M. Woodruff, Kearney, Hudson county, New Jersey. The suit is the result of an accident on the Gettysburg college campus the evening of May 11, 1935. Mrs. Woodruff was walking along the driveway by the gymnasium, when she claims she was hit by a car being backed by Rice. McPherson and McPherson, Esqs., represent the plaintiffs.

Trial Date Not Set

S. F. Snyder, Gettysburg, and Dr. W. C. Waltenyer, also of Gettysburg, are the principals in the next suit which involves a petition to open judgment. John P. Butt, Esq., represents the plaintiff, Mr. Snyder, while Raymond F. Topper, Esq., is counsel for Doctor Waltenyer.

The fourth case is an assumpsit action being brought by B. W. Baker against Sarah E. Geiselman and Elsie I. Geiselman, executrices of the estate of Sarah E. Geiselman. John P. Butt, Esq., represents Mr. Baker. Eugene V. Buleit, Esq., represents the defendants.

The court has not yet set the date for the trial of these cases. They regularly go on trial with the completion of the criminal list. Court convenes November 9.

JURIST IN CAPITAL

Selection of a jury for the trial of Jessie Lewis, 36, colored, of Harrisburg, charged with the murder of Walter (Duke) Jackson, 36, also colored, got under way this morning in Harrisburg, with Judge W. C. Sheely, Gettysburg, trying the case.

ATTENDS CONFERENCE

Professor Ira Y. Baker, assistant superintendent of public schools in Adams county, attended the fifth annual meeting of the Pennsylvania state conference for the education of exceptional children, held Friday and Saturday at the state education building at Harrisburg.

Rev. Frederick B. Crane Takes Theme From Solomon's Dedication of Temple.

USING a portion of Solomon's prayer at the dedication of the temple as a scripture lesson, the Rev. Frederick B. Crane, pastor of the Gettysburg Presbyterian church, preached Sunday evening on the theme, "Three Essentials of Christian Life—Adoration, Meditation and Prayer." Wayne R. Woods, a student at the Gettysburg Lutheran Theological seminary, sang the hymn, "Jesus Calls Us O'er The Tumult," as an offertory solo, after having first spoken briefly of the author and the significance of the hymn.

During the course of the sermon, the Rev. Mr. Crane emphasized the importance of the three spiritual exercises, adoration, meditation and prayer. "In adoration," he said "we stand face to face with God, our lives receptively open. Adoration is the route worship of a soul in a high spiritual moment, a soul awed by the majesty and glory and wonder of the Almighty, a soul lost in wonder, love and praise. It is the experience of the wise men who, when they saw the young child with Mary, His Mother, fell down and worshipped him."

Also Experience of Disciples

"It is the experience of the disciples who fell down before the transfigured Christ. It is the experience of the skeptic Thomas finally convinced and crying out, 'My Lord and my God.' It is the experience of the soul along with God, hushed with awe and wonder, glowing with passionate devotion."

Turning then to the matter of meditation, the preacher continued, "Meditation is deep thought upon the hidden and mysterious things of God. It has been called a lost art, and we can testify as to the difficulty we have to find time and place for it in our bustling, noisy, mechanical day. But the soul needs it. It is an essential, as is adoration. 'Blessed is the man that walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly,' sings the psalmist. 'But his delight is in the law of the Lord and in His law doth he meditate day and night.'"

Psalmist Issues Call

"We view the typical experience of the patriarchs when we read of Isaac, 'And Isaac went out to meditate in the field at the eventide.'"

TELLS HISTORY OF ROCK CHAPEL

Rev. Eslinger Takes Part in Homecoming Services of Methodist Church.

Historic Rock Chapel Methodist church was filled to overflowing Sunday afternoon for annual homecoming services that were conducted under the direction of the pastor, the Rev. H. O. Gotschal. Three former pastors participated in the services.

An historical sketch of Rock chapel was delivered by the Rev. Edwin L. Eslinger, pastor of the Gettysburg Methodist Episcopal church. He stated that the chapel is generally considered to be the second oldest Methodist church in this state. The cornerstone was laid in 1773, four years after that of St. George's church in Philadelphia, which is listed as the most aged church of the denomination in Pennsylvania. The site for the county church is believed to have been selected by a Methodist circuit rider in 1770.

The Rev. William Moses, Camp Hill; the Rev. Ellsworth Allen, also of Camp Hill, and the Rev. E. J. Croft, Blain, Perry county, all former pastors, attended the service and spoke briefly. A vocal duet was presented by Mr. and Mrs. Parker Gardner, members of the church, where regular services are conducted each Sabbath.

The sermon was preached by the Rev. Lester A. Welliver, Harrisburg, the district superintendent. A movement was started to establish a fund, the income from which is to be used to support the Rock chapel and make it a Methodist shrine. Initial contributions to the fund amounted to about $70 Sunday.

A number of members of the local Methodist church attended the exercises.

3 WALLETS--1 WITH $120--ARE TAKEN AT RALLY

Blame Pickpockets for Thefts at Democratic Outing on Saturday.

FOSTER BEARD LOSES THE MOST

At least three persons had their pockets picked while attending the democratic rally and ox roast at the South mountain fair grounds Saturday afternoon and evening. A fourth person reported his pocketbook missing but was not certain that it had been stolen. Reports that the number of victims had reached eight or 10 could not be verified.

Poster Beard, Carlisle street, had his wallet taken from his left hip pocket while attending the rally. The pocketbook contained about $120 in cash and Mr. Beard's driver's and automobile registration cards. He did not discover his loss until about 8 o'clock Saturday evening when he reached for his billfold to pay his son for milk. He had returned from the fair grounds about an hour earlier.

Taken Near Sandwich Stand

Mr. Beard believes the money was taken while he stood in the crowd that packed the space about the building where hot beef sandwiches were being distributed. He stated that he is certain the pocket had been buttoned before the money and its container had been removed.

Another victim was John L. Shoop, Gilliland apartments, Carlisle street, who attended the earlier part of the rally. His $2.50 leather bill-fold disappeared from his buttoned hip pocket while he listened to addresses by Governor Earle and other speakers. The wallet contained one dollar bill, Shoop's railroad passes, driver's and owner's cards for his automobile, and veteran papers that could be of value to no one but the owner.

Mr. Shoop did not learn he had been robbed until Sunday, when he found the pocketbook was missing. This morning he returned to the fair grounds and made a thorough search in the hope that the disappointed thief might have thrown away the pocketbook when it was found to contain little more than papers. The search was fruitless.

No Investigation Underway

During the speaking program it was announced over the amplifying system that Harry S. Thomas, near York Springs, former democratic candidate for sheriff, had lost a pocketbook containing about $20. At the time Mr. Thomas was not certain whether the pocketbook had disappeared or had been left at home.

A report was current today that James H. Reaver, Carlisle street, also had been among the victims. Mr. Reaver denied the rumor, stating (Continued on Page Two)

Girl, 17, Killed as Car Leaves Road; Seven Other Crashes Over Week-End

Highway Patrolmen Kept Busy Investigating Nearby Accidents.

NO INJURIES ARE SERIOUS

Patrolmen from the Gettysburg substation of the highway motor patrol were kept busy investigating the following accidents over the week-end:

Merle Leroy Jacobs, 21, York R. 1, faces a charge of failing to yield one-half the roadway to oncoming traffic as the result of a collision on the Hanover-Dillsburg road, six miles north of East Berlin, in which one person was injured Saturday evening at 11 o'clock.

Jacobs rounded a curve, cutting too close to the left side, according to information given Patrolman R. E. Mathers, of the Gettysburg substation of the highway patrol, who investigated.

His machine struck an approaching automobile operated by Joseph C. Reaser, 22, Gettysburg. Catherine Smith, 22, Dillsburg, an occupant of the Reaser car, sustained a broken nose, bruises and lacerations and suffered from shock. Dr. A. W. Kelly, East Berlin, dressed the injuries.

Damage to the Jacobs car is estimated at $75 and damage to the Reaser car at $85.

According to Patrolman Mathers, Jacobs was traveling toward Dillsburg and attempted to round a curve to the right at a rapid rate of speed. Reaser, who was approaching the curve from the other direction, drove off the hard surface of the road in order to avoid the oncoming car, but the left front of his machine was struck by the left rear of the Jacobs car. The collision occurred on the berm along the road. The Jacobs car spun about after the impact and came to rest heading in the direction from which it had come.

Patrolman Mathers treated Jacobs for a laceration of the forehead. Reaser was unhurt.

Both cars were so badly damaged that they had to be towed from the scene of the accident.

Misjudges Speed And Cars Collide

Carl E. Winand, 21, East Berlin, R. 2, sustained lacerations of the face, jaw and hand when his automobile and a machine operated by Lewis H. Shellenberger, 19, Dillsburg, R. 5, collided on Locust street in East Berlin Saturday night. Patrolman R. E. Mathers, of the Gettysburg substation of the highway patrol, investigated.

Winand was treated by Dr. A. W. Kelly, East Berlin. The injured man told the patrolman that he had been going south and attempted to make a left turn at a street intersection. He stated that he saw the Shellenberger car approaching but thought he had sufficient time to complete the turn.

Shellenberger said he had expected Winand to stop at the intersection. The front of the Shellenberger car struck the left side of the Winand car. Damage to the two machines was placed at about $50.

New Oxford Woman Injured Near York

Three persons were slightly injured when two automobiles collided shortly after midnight Sunday on the Susquehanna trail, a half mile beyond North York.

Those injured were Mabel Wolf, 1701 West Poplar street, York, who suffered contusions to the right knee; Harvey Wolf, 50, of the same address, and Mrs. J. L. Bupp, Neff Oxford, both suffering lacerations of the face.

State Highway Patrolman J. M. Evans, of York, said the operators of the cars involved were Earl M. Bollinger, 143 North Penn street, York, and Sylvester Bupp, of York R. 5.

The Wolfs were passengers in the Bollinger car.

Charged With Not Yielding Roadway

No one was injured when cars operated by Merle L. Mummert, 22, 623 York street, Hanover, and Evelyn McCubbin, 21, 709 Vander avenue, York, collided two miles north of Abbottstown Sunday morning at 4 o'clock.

Damage to each machine was estimated at $50.

Patrolman George S. Harleman, of the Gettysburg substation of the highway patrol, said he will charge Miss McCubbin with failing to yield

103 Lose Lives In Auto Crashes Over Week-End

(By the Associated Press)

Automobile accidents throughout the nation took a toll of at least 103 lives over the week-end.

Seven persons lost their lives near Haleyville, Alabama, when the car in which they were riding rolled backward down a hill into a pond.

Blinding rain caused two automobiles to collide near San Marcos, Texas, killing three persons and injuring six others.

The Association of American Railroads announced that 758 persons were killed in grade crossing crashes during the first six months of the year, an increase of 28 fatalities over the same period last year.

one-half the roadway to oncoming traffic.

Mummert was traveling toward Abbottstown at a speed he estimated at between 40 and 45 miles an hour when he reports that he saw the other car approaching on the wrong side of the highway. He told the patrolman he applied his brakes and swerved to the right in an effort to avoid the collision but the left sides of the two machines struck. An occupant of the York car asserted that Mummert had been on the wrong side of the road.

The patrolman reported that marks on the road indicated that the York machine had been on the wrong side of the highway and that Mummert had tried to avoid the collision. Both cars were so badly damaged that they had to be towed from the scene of the accident.

Blinded by Headlights, Her Car Hits Truck

Miss Louise Duttera, New Oxford, suffered lacerations of the face and contusions of the body when a car she was driving crashed into the rear of a truck parked along the New Oxford-Hanover road one-half mile from New Oxford at 7:30 o'clock Saturday evening.

The accident occurred when Miss Duttera was blinded by the lights of a car opposite the truck. She did not see the truck until it was too late to avoid the crash. John Smith, also of New Oxford, was the driver of the truck.

Damage to Miss Duttera's car amounted to about $75. The accident was not investigated by the highway patrol.

3 Code Violators Are Arrested

Three motorists were nabbed for motor code violations by highway patrolmen from the local substation.

Two informations were laid before Justice of the Peace John H. Basehore charging speeding. The defendants, who paid fines of $10 each and the costs of the cases, were Fred I. Getty, Jennings, Louisiana, and Ben Kemplar, Weirton, West Virginia. Getty admitted driving 72 miles an hour while Kemplar's rate of speed was placed at 58.

Leo F. McDermitt, Gettysburg R. 2, is charged with having made an improper pass on Baltimore street, Hanover, near Forest park. The charge was laid before Justice of the Peace John W. Dubs, Penn township, York county.

No One Hurt as Truck, Car Hit

One minor accident was investigated by Patrolman R. E. Mathers this morning. About 9:30 o'clock a truck and a car figured in a collision four miles east of here on the Lincoln highway when O. E. Gilmore, 66, Petrolia, Butler county, attempted to pass a truck driven by Alfred Russo, 30, Swedesboro, New Jersey.

Both vehicles were traveling west. As Gilmore attempted to pass, he claims that the truck bore to the left and struck his right fender. The damage was slight and no one was hurt.

Arlene Miller, New Oxford, R. 1, Dies Instantly Near Hanover.

THROWN AGAINST A FENCE POST

A 17-year-old girl was instantly killed when the car in which she was an occupant was driven over an embankment at 10:40 o'clock Sunday evening, throwing her clear of the car and crushing her head against a fence post. The accident occurred four miles south of Hanover, on the Westminster road.

The girl, Arlene Miller, daughter of Joseph and Hilda Martin Miller, New Oxford, R. 1, near Cross Keys, was riding in the rumble seat of the Ford roadster driven by J. William Yingling, 18, 237 Centennial avenue, Hanover. Robert Weaver, 19, 517 North street, McSherrystown, and Gladys Alder, 18, also of New Oxford, R. 1, near Cross Keys, were other occupants of the car. None of the latter three was injured.

Runs Through Fence

According to an investigation being made by Coroner L. U. Zech, of York county, and Patrolman R. E. Mathers, of the Gettysburg substation of the highway patrol, Yingling had been driving on the Shepherd-Myers dam road, and had turned north onto the Westminster road. Crossing the bridge about 250 feet from the intersection, the car continued 60 feet farther before running down an embankment on the right side of the road, through a wire fence and turning over on the left side. Patrolman Mathers stated early this morning he will lay an information charging Yingling with reckless driving.

William Overbaugh, Pleasant avenue, Hanover, took the girl to the Hanover general hospital, where Coroner Zech viewed the body and said death had been instantaneous. The coroner said there would be an inquest, but gave no date.

Surviving the dead girl are her parents and these brothers and sisters, Joseph, Teresa, Paul, Robert and Frederick, all at home.

OREGON TOWNS RAVAGED BY FOREST FIRES

6 Lives Lost and 1,500 Homeless After Flames Destroy Bandon.

Marshfield, Ore., Sept. 28 (AP).—Forest fires licked menacingly at the outskirts of Marshfield and Coos Bay Sunday after virtually destroying the coastal town of Bandon, leaving its entire population of 1,500 homeless.

At least six persons were dead at Bandon.

Eighteen miles inland, small buildings were on fire on the outskirts of Coquille, a town of 3,000, and scores of families were leaving their homes. Burning embers were falling throughout the town.

Scattered suburban buildings in the Coos Bay cities of Marshfield and North Bend, with a combined population of 12,000, were on fire. Streams of water were kept playing on scores of homes.

3,000 Men Fighting Fires. Nearly 3,000 men were pressed into service in the fire lines.

In Cuddy county, south of Bandon, two forest areas covering 10,000 acres were burning. CCC men from all parts of Oregon were rushed to the various conflagrations.

On orders from Gov. Charles H. Martin, twelve Oregon National Guard trucks left Salem with blankets, cots, ranges, cooking utensils, tents, lanterns and other equipment for the homeless.

Elmer Goudy, head of the state relief committee, dispatched trucks with canned beef, flour, cots and tinned fruits and vegetables.

Coast Guard To Carry Supplies. Brig.-Gen. Thomas Rilea, of the National Guard, reported to the governor that it would be necessary to transfer supplies to the Coast Guard cutter Onandaga, since bridges between Winchester Bay and Coos Bay had been destroyed.

The American Legion post at Coquille rushed two truckloads of food and water to Bandon. Three Coast Guard cutters were available for relief.

Should smoke continue to bar the cutters from the harbor, the commanders planned to send in small, powered lifeboats loaded with supplies and ready to evacuate more refugees.

Red Cross headquarters for the Pacific area announced at San Francisco it was calling upon all western Oregon centers to contribute $40,000 to $50,000 for relief and rehabilitation work in fire-ravaged Bandon.

Fifteen hundred men were fighting the blaze on the eighteen-mile road between Bandon and Coquille when authorities prepared to evacuate the latter. Residents began leaving Coquille as the flames advanced to within three miles of town.

Spread in all Directions. Fire also broke out in green timber two miles from Marshfield, thirty-eight miles from Bandon, and cinders were falling in the town.

Three Needs of a Christian Life

was as Jesus took command of the Israelitish host that God commanded him. 'This book of the law shall not depart out of thy mouth; but thou shalt meditate therein day and night.'

'The psalmist issues the sublime call to meditation when he says, 'Be still and know that I am God: I will be exalted among the heathen, I will be exalted in the earth.' The Apostle Paul, in his letter to the Philippians, urges meditation upon holy things, and to Timothy he writes, 'Meditate upon these things; give thyself wholly to them that thy profiting may appear unto all.'

'In meditation God is in the third person. We think about God and the things of God.'

And then turning to the last part of this subject, the speaker said, in part: 'In prayer, as Dr. John MacKay has put it, the 'He' of meditation is translated into the 'Thou' of prayer. In prayer we talk to God and our spirits have communion with His Spirit. It is an avenue of approach to God. He invited us to it and promises to hear and answer.'

'In prayer we adore Him, we make confession of our sins, we joyfully thank Him for His mercies, and bless Him, and we raise to Him our supplications. Prayer may be prepared and polished as in public worship. Prayer may be the passionate outpouring of an eager soul, or a breathed thought sent heavenward out of the tumult of a busy day. It is a wonderful privilege accorded man by a gracious God.'

'These three, then—adoration, meditation and prayer—are essential aspects of the full orbed Christian experience and as we practice them we not only enter more and more fully into the spiritual blessings of holy communion, but the faltering steps of new born faith become the firm tread of a man who has learned to walk with God.'

gressman Haines has for the President.

As he concluded Earle explained the "vicious" operation of the sales tax, which he reported is favored by the republicans, and promised to veto it.

Mrs. Emma Guffey Miller followed the governor on the platform, and charged Governor Landon with closing hundreds of public schools in Kansas in order to balance his budget. "Know a man by the company he keeps," she said and listed Melton, Grundy, Taylor, Pew and Reed as Landon's backers in this state. "Vote the straight democratic ticket and give this state a cleaning up it hasn't had in years," she concluded.

Senator Rice in a brief talk told the people that if they wanted a change two years ago and are still interested in giving Governor Earle a chance to carry out his policies that are for the benefit of the people of the state, to see that a democratic legislature is sent to Harrisburg.

F. Clair Ross, the nominee for state treasurer, asked for an opportunity to examine republican-kept books in the state treasurer's office at Harrisburg. "Roosevelt hasn't balanced the budget but he has fed the people and given them work," he stated.

Speeches Here in Evening.

State Senator Warren Roberts, for auditor general, said he came with a "message of hope and cheer" and predicted the re-election of Roosevelt in November and that this state will go democratic. He compared critics of Roosevelt with those who abused Washington and Lincoln and predicted that the President will be recorded in history as the saviour of the nation that Washington founded and Lincoln preserved.

The final speaker was Charles H. Richter, Berwick township, who seeks to succeed Dr. H. M. Hartman in the legislature. He spoke briefly.

Preceding and following the addresses a concert was presented by the New Oxford high school band and refreshments were served at the building where the ox roast had been conducted.

Later in the evening several of the speakers came to Gettysburg and spoke at 8:15 o'clock in front of the Hotel Gettysburg, center square. J. Walter Kugler, Liberty township, a former county chairman, introduced the candidates and other speakers. The list included: Mrs. Charles Ogde, Chambersburg, vice-chairman of Franklin county; Senator Rice, Senator Roberts and Woodrow Wilson Jones, of Cumberland county, a member of the state speakers' bureau.

The Wrong Murderer

By HUGH CLEVELY

SYNOPSIS: Terence Mahony has rescued two girls from Ambrose Lawson's grasp of kidnapping the same night. When he took Elsa Little, the film star, to her home he unfortunately made himself a suspect in the murder of her uncle. And now he has left Ruth Fraser at the home of her guardian, Lee-Ramsden, and departed without telling her who he is. And Lee-Ramsden tells Ruth that the police will never believe the story she has told him of her experience.

Chapter 13

THREAT FROM LAWSON

Lee-Ramsden rose from his chair. "Why not tell them the old story that you went to stay with an old school friend and forgot to let us know you were going," he suggested. "Then they won't have to pretend to be busy investigating a lot of kidnappers who, they will be quite sure, don't exist. I don't suppose for a moment the police will believe the story of the old school friend, but at least it will relieve them of further responsibility, and it will look much better in the newspapers than that ridiculous kidnapping story."

"Perhaps you're right," she replied. "I'll tell the old school friend story if you think that will cause less fuss. Now I'm going to bed. Good night, Uncle Gerald."

She always called him uncle, though he was not her uncle. But he had been her father's best friend. "Good night, my dear," said Lee-Ramsden. "And next time you're thinking of going off for a day or two just let me know. I shan't ask where you're going. But I shan't start the police hunting for you."

Ruth did not answer; she went to bed. After she had gone Lee-Ramsden remained for a few minutes leaning back against the mantelpiece with his hands in the pockets of his silk dressing-gown. The butler entered to remove the things from the dining-room table. Lee-Ramsden glanced at him.

"Well, Mullins, this is a surprise, isn't it?" he observed cheerfully.

"Indeed it is, sir," replied Mullins. He had an uneasy air.

"Our friend Lawson seems rather to have made a mess of things somehow," went on Lee-Ramsden. "I wonder who that young man was who fetched my ward back. You didn't see him, by any chance, did you?"

"No, sir. He drove away before I had the door open," answered Mullins.

"That's a pity. A great pity," said Lee-Ramsden, and his voice became more genial and cheerful than ever. But a little pulse was beating strongly in his forehead.

"A great pity," he repeated. "Because we shall have to find out who he is and deal with him before we can do anything more about Miss Ruth. And in two months' time she will be twenty-one. Which does not give us a great deal of time, does it, Mullins?"

"No, sir," said Mullins. "Time enough, though, I hope," said Lee-Ramsden.

Mullins picked up the tray and hurried from the room as though anxious to get out of it as quickly as possible. He was frightened.

For twenty-five years he had served that large affable, cynical, pleasant-mannered man, Gerald Lee-Ramsden. He worshipped Lee-Ramsden; he would have done anything at his command; and at the same time he feared him with a mortal terror.

After leaving Ruth Fraser, Mahony returned to Notting Hill Gate, where his rooms were situated, put the car away in a lock-up garage he had rented in a nearby meks, and entered the house where he lodged.

He awakened fairly early in the morning, and during breakfast he studied the morning papers. Nothing was in them about the murder of Vincent Little.

After breakfast he rang up the hospital to which Ross had been taken to enquire about him. Ross was still alive and still unconscious; he might remain unconscious for several days. The doctors did not know let whether he would live or not.

Mahony decided that it would be best to leave the next move to his enemies. He wondered what form that move would take. Lawson could hardly tell the police that he, Mahony, had been in the Little's house when Mr. Little was murdered, and he, thought it extremely unlikely that Elsa could have recognized him.

Nevertheless his enemies, not knowing what he knew about them, would be pretty sure to make some move against him for their own protection.

In the meantime it might not be a bad idea to have a bit of a look round. When he had finished his second cigarette, he consulted the telephone directory and looked up Lawson's home address. Then he set off, on foot, in the direction of Lawson's house.

As luck would have it, at the end of the street in which Lawson lived he met Lawson himself.

Both men stopped. For a moment they eyed one another warily, like strange dogs meeting, their hackles bristling. Then Lawson smiled.

"Good morning, Mahony," he remarked. "And what are you doing in this part of the world?"

"Walking," answered Mahony. "Do you mind?"

"Not at all," said Lawson. "Walk as much as you like, my dear fellow, while you have a chance. You may not have the opportunity of walking very much longer."

He paused.

"I'm just going to call on Miss Little," he went on blandly. "You've formed a habit of dropping in at her house, I believe. Why not come along too?"

There was a kind of insolent challenge in his tone; he seemed to be daring Mahony to come. Mahony was irritated.

He took up Lawson's challenge. "That's quite an idea, I will come along with you to see Miss Little," he said.

At the same time he wondered about the object of Lawson's invitation. Why should Lawson invite him to come along and see Elsa Little?

"What have you been doing to your lip?" he asked. "It looks as if you ran into something."

Lawson ignored that. "Good. I'm sure Miss Little will be glad to see you after you so gallantly rescued her last night," he said in a mocking tone. "Unfortunately, though, she doesn't appear to know that it was you who rescued her. I should tell her if I were you."

That was plain speaking enough. Mahony smiled.

"Does she know that it was you who murdered her uncle?" he asked.

"No. Fortunately she doesn't know that either. You can tell that, too, if you like. Here comes a taxi. I suggest that we take it."

They entered the taxi. (Copyright, 1936, Hugh Clevely)

Tomorrow, Mahony rides straight into a trap.

Maroons and Scotland Open Seasons With Scoreless Tie

A light, inexperienced Gettysburg high school football team held a heavy veteran Scotland industrial school eleven to a scoreless tie on the high school athletic field Saturday afternoon in the football curtain raiser for both institutions. A fair size crowd attended.

Defensively the Maroons played fine ball, but failed to produce any sustained offense except for in the final few minutes of play, when Coach Forney's squad reeled off two straight first downs near midfield.

Scotland rolled up nine first downs as compared to three for Gettysburg. However, once within scoring position the invaders found themselves stopped by the spirited play of the Maroons. No less than four times did Scotland advance beyond the 10-yard line and on each occasion the Forneymen braced to take the ball. Twice the visitors were halted on the two-yard mark.

Threaten Early

The game opened with Linn kicking off and Scotland returning to the 31-yard stripe. Two successive first downs were registered on line plays, but the visitors were soon forced to punt from Gettysburg's 40-yard line. Stock fumbled the kick and Finnegan recovered on the Maroon five-yard line. Scotland found the Maroon defense unyielding and gave up the ball without a gain. Several exchanges of kicks followed and the quarter ended with Scotland in possession of the ball on their own 44-yard line.

Gettysburg's first threat came in the early minutes of the second period, after Bosack recovered a fumble on the visitors' 39-yard line. After failing to gain, Wright punted out of bounds on the enemy's fifteen-yard stripe. Weigle returned the punt, but his kick sailed straight up in the air and Gettysburg took the ball on the 15-yard line. After a five-yard off-side penalty the locals advanced just beyond the 10-yard line, but a pass over the goal line gave Scotland the ball on its own 20-yard mark.

Maroons Fail

Two exchanges of kicks gave the invaders the ball on their own 25-yard line and a few seconds later Stanley intercepted an enemy pass on the 17-yard line. Stanley, Stock and Wright reeled off a first down on Scotland's six-yard line. Again the Maroon offense could not get going and after a pass that failed and another that was good for four yards, the visitors took the ball on the two-yard stripe. Scotland then kicked out of danger.

The longest run of the game occurred in the dying minutes of the half when with the ball on their own 25-yard line, Weigle heaved a 25-yard pass to Finnegan, who scampered 25 yards more before being brought down on Gettysburg's 25-yard line. A few plays later the half ended.

Using a mixture of line plunges and short forward passes Scotland marched from its own 40-yard line to the Gettysburg six-yard stripe after receiving the kickoff to open the second half. Once again the Forney-men showed their courage and determination and took the ball on the five-yard mark.

Several plays later Scotland blocked an attempted quick-kick by Wright and recovered on the Maroons' 29-yard line. A first down, with Weigle leading the attack, was made on the locals' 11-yard line. Again the Maroons arose to the occasion and hurled back four straight plays to take the ball on the two-yard line.

After a few exchanges of kicks Gettysburg secured possession of the ball on its own 20-yard line and then displayed its only real offensive work of the day. Stock featured the attack which reeled off to straight first downs to advance the ball to midfield. The offensive drive, however, was then halted and the game ended a few seconds later.

Gettysburg completed three of seven passes while Scotland made good on only three of 20, two of which were intercepted.

The Maroons next meet the Quincy orphanage school here Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock.

Paris (AP).—Black Persian lamb is used in a novel way for a black wool midnight suit. BIGLER LOSES OPENING TILT

Upper Countians Surprise by Holding Veteran Chambersburg Team, 28-0 Score.

A courageous Biglerville high school football team, though outweighed by at least 15 pounds to the man and handicapped seriously by injuries and lack of substitutes, lost a hard-fought grid battle to the Chambersburg high varsity, 28-0, Saturday afternoon, on the latter's field, before 1,500 fans.

The score is not a true indication of the calibre of the game. It was the first contest of the season for both teams and, although he had to use his starting line-up throughout the game, except when it was broken by injuries, Coach Bernard Thrush's boys made a gallant bid for victory. It was not until the last few minutes of play when two of Biglerville's players were injured, that Chambersburg gained a safe margin.

Chambersburg's lead at this point was 14-0 as a result of two touchdowns and a safety. With only five and one-half minutes to play, West, Chambersburg right end, intercepted a pass and, evading several tacklers, raced to the 19-yard line before Bringman pulled him down, thus avoiding another touchdown. Bringman was hurt in this play and soon after Bucher had to leave the game because of an injury. Reese, who with Jay Overcash, made a big gain through the Biglerville line, plunged across for a touchdown. On their first offensive play after the subsequent kick-off, a long pass from Knapper to Murray resulted in second score in less than five minutes.

Considering that Chambersburg listed this as a warming-up game, the Black and Gold warriors performed well. Chambersburg points with great hopes to a conference championship this year. Starting the game with Stein and Wilkinson out of the line-up, the Biglerville aggregation was seriously handicapped. The starting line-up, though weak at several spots, was effective, but lack of reinforcements proved to be disastrous in the closing minutes. Bringman will be lost to the team for several weeks, but barring further injuries, the Biglerville team should make a fine showing of itself this year. The line proved itself worthy of praise, playing intact in the last five minutes.

The line-up:

Pos.	Biglerville	Chambersburg
L. E.	Reinecker	Sleighter
L. T.	Shank	Washner
L. G.	Bringman	Smith
C.	Ecker	Winger
R. G.	Hollabaugh	Linsinger
R. T.	Bucher	West
Q. B.	Woff	Ott (c)
I. H. B.	McCauley	M. J. Overcash
R. H. B.	Westzel	Ewan
F. B.	Ogden	Reese
Score by periods:
Chambersburg	28	0-0-0-28
Safety, Wentzel, Touchdowns, Overcash 2, Reese, Murray, Extra points, Reese 2, line plunges. Substitutions—Biglerville: Lawver, Coddington, Dentler, Peters; Chambersburg: Knapper, Jerry Overcash, Murray, Weaver, Martin, Boise, Snyder, Williams, Shockey, Fries, Rider, Referee, Rhodes, Umpire, T. Smith, Headlinesman, Elder.

MOUNTS BEAT DAVIS-ELKINS

Frederick, Sept. 28 (AP).—Mount St. Mary's college opened its football season here Saturday with a 12-0 victory over Davis-Elkins college, of Enkins, West Virginia. The game, first intercollegiate football contest ever played in this city, attracted a crowd of 2,000 persons.

The Mountaineers, outplayed in the first period, came back in the second and third quarters to score. Frank Apichella scored the first touchdown on a 12-yard dash through right tackle after the Mountaineers capitalized on a poor kick by Keppell that only went to the 25-yard line.

Mike Kuratnick registered the second touchdown early in the third period from the 5-yard line after Kokie's 17-yard pass to Walsky had placed the ball in scoring position.

Davis-Elkins came back in the fourth quarter with a passing attack, Gainer to Gregory, and advanced to the Mount's 17-yard line, where Frank Apichella intercepted a pass to end the drive.

To Housekeepers! Patent Feather Dresser. The above machine for purifying and cleaning new and old feathers has been in operation in this place for a few days, and in Lancaster, Philadelphia and N.
York, for a number of months and is pronounced one of the greatest improvements of the day. It cleanses feathers from all impurities or offensive smell, screens out the dirt, kills the moth or other animal matter; it thoroughly dries and enlivens them, so that three beds often make four—and moths will never live in them after going through this process. The expense is trifling, compared with the benefits. Persons living in the country can bring their feathers to town, and have them dressed to time to be taken home the same day.

The Machine is in the small shop one door west of the office of John Garin, Esq., near the Diamond.

N. B. Beds will be called for and returned the same day perfectly pure and dry.

Just Folks

EDGAR A. GUEST

OFF TO SCHOOL
Throat a little lumpy,
Eyes a trifle dim;
Heart a wee bit jumpy
All because of him.
Countless mothers maybe,
Now the days are cool,
Sigh to see the baby
Starting off to school.

Strange that I should sigh so,
Now the day is here;
Strange that I should try so
Not to shed a tear.
Yet I stand here grieving
In the vestibule
As I think of leaving
Him all day in school.

Why this sinking feeling?
Why this moment's pain?
What am I concealing
In my burning brain?
Can it be that mothers
Suffer deep concern
When at last from others
Babies begin to learn?

This the reason maybe
Heartache troubles me;
Never more the baby
Mine alone will be.
I no more can hold him
Mine to love and rule,
The world's begun to mould him!
Now he's off to school.

Today's Talk

By George Matthew Adams

SELF-APPRAISAL

A BUSINESS cannot go forward very well without a systematic, periodic appraisal. How much more important for a human life, which, after all, is a working machine—a producer or a non-producer, to appraise itself at frequent intervals.

We go forward, grow, and become more useful only as we correct our faults, as we seek out the leaks in our working machine, and strive to perfect an efficient organization within ourselves. To make it a daily habit to review the mistakes or failures of a day against any advance or improvement is one of the most valuable methods for mental and spiritual growth.

We should ever review the state of our mind and keep self-appraising all that we are and have. There are worn out ideas that clutter up a mind that is desirous of growth. Get rid of them. Ideas must be constantly changing so that they reflect changing conditions. We must keep in tune with the times and not lag behind in critical mood.

There are certain principles of life and conduct that must forever remain as the standard values of life. These we must preserve against all assaults. The principles of honesty, fair dealing, courtesy, self-dependence and self-control, decency of behavior, are as old as history and time and they will never go out of fashion. They remain as assets and are the heritage of all. The human being who cherishes these will go far.

We are privileged to live in a rapidly changing age. The spirit in which we meet the problems presented appraises our worth to ourselves and to the world. First we should not fail ourselves and our opportunities—and then we should not fail our friends or the time in which we live.

By persistent self-appraisal each of us will be able to sweep from our path the destructive fears that block the way ahead. Place a premium upon values and adhere to them as guiding stars when things grow dark and black. The pioneers did this—and we are their inheritors, with instructions to carry on!

Ben Franklin Was the First
Disciple of Truth—

In Newspaper Advertising

Early in the month of June, 1731, an advertisement was submitted to Benjamin Franklin for publication in his Pennsylvania Gazette, issued in Philadelphia and Pennsylvania's second newspaper. The advertisement stated that a ship in the harbor would soon be ready to sail for Barbadoes and that passengers and shippers might meet the Captain at a designated place. At the bottom of the advertisement appeared this postscript: "No Sea Hens nor Black Gowns Will Be Admitted On Any Terms."

Franklin, busy at the time, failed to discern significance in the postscript, other than reflection that it apparently was innocent humor designed to attract attention. The advertisement was published and immediately a storm of protest broke. Criticism was heaped as many readers threatened to terminate their subscriptions. Franklin found to his amazement that "Sea Hens" and "Black Gowns," far from innocent humor, were sailors' slang that embodied insulting reference to the clergy of the Church of England.

Franklin regretted his acceptance of the five shillings for the advertisement. He made a public apology in his issue of June 10, 1731.

Benjamin Franklin recognized the principle that his was a direct RESPONSIBILITY to his readers to maintain his newspaper free of questionable, untruthful and tricky statements. He likewise realized that FORESIGHT in this regard constituted sound business policy. Under this policy his newspaper attained great public influence as well as remarkable business success.

His Principles Still Hold Today

Pennsylvania newspaper publishers today perpetuate the principles laid down by Benjamin Franklin. They, too, clearly recognize the responsibility that is theirs to maintain standards that safeguard the confidence and interests of their readers, the public.

That this principle transcends any mercenary consideration is clearly evidenced by this fact—Every month of the year, Pennsylvania newspapers reject thousands of dollars in proffered business because the advertising involved fails to meet the standards they require.

Today the offender, the fraud, is much more subtle than in Franklin's day. Happily, this element represents but a fragment of that great army of business which reflects its honor and its dignity in its advertising messages.

Newspapers have pioneered in a concerted war on exaggeration and misrepresentation in advertising. Today these efforts have placed the newspapers in an enviable position in the confidence of their readers.

Without thought or heed of financial factors, the newspapers of Pennsylvania have turned their most powerful weapons upon any and all who would trade upon the confidence of the newspaper reader. They have rooted out and destroyed the fraud and the charlatan; they have barred him forever from their columns and when expediency dictated need, they have turned the full glare of a pitiless publicity upon his tactics.

The ultimate objective of this unceasing newspaper vigilance?

The answer is simple.

Your confidence; confidence that you may read your newspaper with the knowledge that it unalterably clings to those principles of Truth—Truth in News, Truth in Advertising—enunciated by that illustrious Pennsylvania editor of two centuries ago—Benjamin Franklin.

"It's Hard for an Empty Bag to Stand Upright"

That was Franklin's phraseology and its homely truth endures now as it did in his day. Business that would trade upon deception and trickery, no matter how subtle, forever is barred from that stimulant that is the lifeblood of modern business-newspaper advertising. In your newspaper, advertising comes to you as the embodiment of the highest ideals of modern business. Newspaper advertising is Truth.

Waco Is Swamped

As Levee Breaks

Eastern Part of Texas Town Inundated; 2,000 Persons Left Homeless.

Dallas, Texas, Sept. 28 (AP).—Two thousand persons were left homeless at Waco, ninety miles south of here, Sunday afternoon when a Brazos river levee gave way under the crush of flood-waters and inundated the entire eastern part of the city.

The levee broke a mile above town, swamping a residential section. City Manager W. C. Torrence, of Waco, said he believed all persons had been removed or warned to leave the endangered area before the water hit.

Martial law was declared. City Manager Torrence, commander of the One Hundred and Forty-third Infantry, Texas National Guard, issued the order and placed state troops in charge of the flood area. The martial law will hold only in the flooded eastern part of town, Torrence said.

Troops began patrolling the flood area just before darkness fell to prevent possible disorders.

Three refugee stations were set up, with National Guard field kitchens to care for the homeless. Police rigged up a loud speaker car to direct rescue trucks, operated by volunteers from the American Legion, police and National Guard.

Waco is a city of 60,000, just below the junction of the Brazos and Bosque rivers. The streams were still rising Sunday afternoon and vast damage was feared if they should continue upward.

RACE TO RE-ARM IN EUROPE IS SPEEDED UP

Nations Rapidly Increasing All Branches of Military.

(Copyright 1936, By Associated Press)
Men, money and munitions pour in torrents over the lowered floodgates of European spending as the nations struggle for arms supremacy.

The major powers are draining their treasuries and resources of manpower to build bigger and bigger armies, to match each forward stride of a potential enemy with one just a little farther ahead.

Recent developments have hinged on Dictator Adolf Hitler's decree prolonging Germany's periods of conscripted military training from one to two years.

To Build Up Air Force
France, alarmed lest a similar costly tactic plunge the nation into bankruptcy, elected to match strength with the nazis with a swift, modern and highly mechanized defense second to none in Europe. It appropriated $182,595,000 for a

People of Gettysburg and Vicinity

Thanks a million to you for the warm reception you have given us. Words cannot express the profoundness of our appreciation, and while we feel that we did our utmost to give you cleaning at 39 cents as good as if we charged a dollar, or even higher, at the same time we could have never proven it if it were not for the wide circulation of your local newspaper.
